In 2009, FKP ranked among the top third of Engineer News-Record's "Top Green Design Firms" nationwide, highlighting the fact that 20% of our projects (all health care and research) qualify in the sustainable design category. As members of the United States Green Building Council, Gulf Coast Green Council and American Institute of Architects 2030 Commitment, we have built an internal Green Architecture Initiative at FKP. To date, 40% of our designers and technical staff are LEED accredited professionals.

In nature, it's all about balance. Green design is best when it finds its balance among other principles essential to creating physically and operationally healthy facilities. Our transformational design approach brings together the industry's best practices in Healing Environments, LEAN Operations, Evidence-Based Design and Sustainability. There is no one size fits all. No standard formula. It's not about certifications or awards — we help clients find their own unique balance.
