FKP Architects Elects Huckaby and Osan to Board of Directors

FKP Architects is pleased to announce the election of Edward E. Huckaby, FAIA, ACHA, ACHE and Diane R. K. Osan, FAIA, ACHA to the firm's Board of Directors. They join current board members John S. Crane, AIA, ACHA; Richard M. Harris AIA, ACHA; Linda Kane, SPHR; and R. Wayne Marchand, AIA, ACHA.

With more than 100 projects to his credit, Huckaby has been dedicated to the practice of architectural planning and design for more than 30 years. As senior principal and senior project designer at FKP, he has created healing and learning environments for many of the nation's most renowned healthcare and academic medical institutions including The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Cancer Center, Texas Children's Hospital, Texas A&M University Health Science Center and Nationwide Children's Hospital in Columbus, Ohio.

A recognized thought-leader in healthcare design, Huckaby's innovative concepts have been benchmarked and emulated nationally.

A resident of Sugar Land, Texas, Huckaby holds Master of Architecture and Bachelor of Environmental Design degrees from Texas A&M University. He is a Fellow in the American Institute of Architects and serves on the leadership council of the AIA Academy of Architecture for Health. A sought after guest lecturer on industry trends, he is also member of the Texas Society of Architects and founding member of the American College of Healthcare Architects.

For 25 years, Osan has been committed to helping healthcare institutions translate vision into reality. As senior principal and senior project designer at FKP, she leads teams in delivering results for pediatric and women's health facilities, cancer care centers and academic medical institutions across the country. Her extensive portfolio includes projects for clients such as The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, CHRISTUS Health and the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences. Osan's work with Texas Children's Hospital contributed to their honor as the first healthcare facility recognized with Business Week's "Good Design is Good Business" award.
